NATIVE AMERICAN STUDIES DEPARTMENT AT UM
HIRES VISITING INSTRUCTOR FOR NEXT QUARTER

MISSOULA--

Elaine Gilham Clayborn, a native of Browning and an enrolled member of the Blackfeet Tribe, has been appointed as visiting lecturer of Native American Studies for winter quarter at the University of Montana in Missoula.

Clayborn will teach several courses at UM next quarter which will meet the certification requirement for students who plan to teach on or near Indian reservations in the state. Teachers working on or near a Montana reservation must complete a course in American Indian Studies by July 1, 1979, in order to obtain or maintain certification.

Clayborn received the bachelor of arts and master of arts degrees from UM in 1974. She currently is working for the State Superintendent of Public Instruction as a cultural awareness specialist for the Equal Learning Opportunities Program.
